

ABSTRACT OF THE INVENTION

An unmanned, remote-controlled, long-range or long-flight duration airplane is designed to efficiently carry a large amount of fuel and payload for long duration flights. Structural wing design comprises an integral structure of recessed and interconnected geometric shapes, such as hexagonal cells. Wings are formed together as a single unit, with each wing formed in an arc design as it extends from the fuselage.